

Guide

Richard Buckner loves 'making sounds.' D12

Good food and a great view at Tin Lizzy's. D3

Galleries offer a world gone awry. D5

Abbie Cornish shines in 'Bright Star.' D8

News: newstips@ajc.com or 404-526-7003 | Delivery: ajc.com/customer-care or 404-522-4141

Fall exhibits: 6 to catch

Museums, attractions spotlight new season.

Centuries-old artistry, captivating critters and gold go on display.

By Howard Pousner
hpousner@ajc.com

You needn't be a da Vinci to understand why so many major exhibitions are opening in Atlanta over the next few weeks. As with performing arts presenters, the city's museums and attractions try to put their best feet forward to start the fall season.

The half-dozen exhibits featured here today – from "Planet Shark: Predator or Prey" at the Georgia Aquarium to da Vinci himself at the High Museum of Art – have little in common beyond being big undertakings that are hungry to engage sizable audiences.

Here's a sampling of visual treats heading this way starting this weekend ...

Exhibitions continued on D12

